FOREWORD

Knowledge is always valuable, but in a systematised form it becomes an invaluable asset to mankind. The present bibliography on Banks and Banking in India, with special reference to Bank Nationalisation is a testimony to this fact.

Sarvashri Shukla, Chauhan and Maheshwari have rendered a great service to all those who are interested and engaged in the study and research in this field. The authors have brought together, in this monumental survey, almost all the available information that can be culled from government reports, articles, monographs, editorial comments, statements, resolutions and bulletins, etc.

It is not possible for any individual researcher to keep track of the relevant and pinpointed information which is scattered in several forms of documents. It is precisely this background against which the role and importance of a bibliography can be rightly appreciated and evaluated.

I heartily congratulate the authors on undertaking this arduous work and thank them for the great industry and energy they have devoted in arranging the vast source material in a minutely classified sequence.

PREFACE

There may be no two opinions about the pivotal role played by the banking system of a country in its economic growth and development. Take any sphere of economic activity-whether it is planning and development, import and export, public utilities and social welfare, public and private finance, or whatsoever out of manifold departments of the economic life of a people, the importance of banking system cannot be ignored.

It is therefore in the fitness of the things that most of the literature provoking the thought, imagination and actions of workers in this field should be touching this subject. Hence the need to collect and catalogue it in a systematized manner for the assistance and guidance of researchers and others engaged in the study of banking system of our country.

Bank nationalisation, the most hotly debated issue, is the recentmost phenomena in the annals of Indian banks and banking. There may be a very wide spectrum of opinions regarding the merits or otherwise of the issue ; but there will be no hesitation from any quarter to accept that this single stroke of bringing the fourteen major commercial banks under public sector has proved to be the most talked about phenomena touching nearly every section of the society. From a politician, businessman or an intellectual right down to a layman, everywhere the impact has been felt with its many implications-economic, political, social and legal.

We have, therefore, taken exclusive care to ensure that no article or paper of importance regarding this aspect be left uncatalogued in this bibliography.

We acknowledge our gratitude to the librarians of various libraries who allowed us to consult and use their catalogues and allied reference material. We would also like to express our hearty thanks to Shri S D. Verma, I.S.I. Planning Unit for the kind encouragement and constant help in the preparation of this work.

—Authors

The first part of the document discusses the general principles of the proposed system. It is intended to provide a comprehensive overview of the various aspects involved in the implementation of the new regulations. The following sections will detail the specific measures and procedures that will be put into effect.

The second part of the document outlines the administrative arrangements for the proposed system. This includes the appointment of key personnel, the establishment of committees, and the allocation of resources. It is essential that these arrangements be completed in a timely manner to ensure the smooth operation of the system.

The third part of the document describes the financial implications of the proposed system. This includes an analysis of the costs involved, the sources of funding, and the expected revenue. It is important that the financial aspects be carefully considered to ensure that the system is financially viable.

The fourth part of the document discusses the legal aspects of the proposed system. This includes a review of the relevant laws and regulations, and the proposed amendments. It is essential that the legal aspects be thoroughly examined to ensure that the system is fully compliant with the law.

The fifth part of the document outlines the implementation schedule for the proposed system. This includes the identification of key milestones, the assignment of responsibilities, and the monitoring of progress. It is important that the implementation schedule be realistic and achievable.

The sixth part of the document discusses the monitoring and evaluation of the proposed system. This includes the identification of key performance indicators, the establishment of a monitoring mechanism, and the regular reporting of progress. It is essential that the system be regularly monitored and evaluated to ensure that it is meeting its objectives.

The seventh part of the document discusses the communication and public relations aspects of the proposed system. This includes the development of a communication strategy, the identification of key stakeholders, and the regular communication of information. It is important that the public be kept informed of the progress of the system.

The eighth part of the document discusses the training and capacity building aspects of the proposed system. This includes the identification of training needs, the development of training programs, and the regular training of personnel. It is essential that the personnel involved in the system be adequately trained and equipped.

The ninth part of the document discusses the risk management aspects of the proposed system. This includes the identification of potential risks, the assessment of the likelihood and impact of these risks, and the development of risk mitigation strategies. It is important that the risks associated with the system be carefully managed.

The tenth part of the document discusses the conclusion and next steps. This includes a summary of the key findings of the document, the identification of the next steps, and the assignment of responsibilities. It is essential that the next steps be clearly defined and assigned to the appropriate personnel.

HOW TO USE

The entries are arranged in two sequences :—

1. Classified from p. 17 to p. 186.
2. Authorwise from p. 187 to p. 271.

The general pattern of the lay-out of entries in the Classified Part may be well understood by going through the three Summaries of Contents from p. 1 to p. 15. We would, however, advise the reader to always consult the Subject Index (p. 273) in order to have full information about a particular problem, i.e.
